

CASIN Call for Applications for EDITOR-IN-CHIEF, Eyes on the International Criminal Court

The Board of Directors is accepting applications for the position of Editor-in-Chief of Eyes on the International Criminal Court (Eyes), CASIN's flagship academic journal on the International Criminal Court. Junior faculty, postdoctoral fellows, PhD candidates, law school graduates, and advanced graduate students are especially encouraged to apply.

Eyes is the only peer-reviewed, scholarly journal devoted to the study of the International Criminal Court. It has been published since 2004 by the Council for American Students in International Negotiations, a non-profit, non-partisan organization composed of a network of students and young professionals from around the world.

Eyes is an interdisciplinary journal that invites submissions from any field that addresses the International Criminal Court or international criminal law more generally. Past editors have come from the fields of international law, international relations, and sociology. To view current and previous volumes, please visit the journal's website: <http://www.americanstudents.us/journals/eyesontheicc/>.

JOB DESCRIPTION:

The Editor-in-Chief (EIC), with the assistance of the Managing Editor (ME) and 5-7 Assistant Editors (AEs), will be responsible for producing one volume per publication year, comprised of at least five articles, with a camera-ready manuscript due on December 1. Submissions are accessed via Expresso as well as through direct e-mail contact between authors and the EIC or the ME. The EIC reports to the Publications Committee of CASIN's Board of Directors.

Please note that this is a volunteer and virtual position. Work is coordinated predominantly through e-mail and other forms of electronic communication. Please also note that this position is offered without compensation.

REQUIRED QUALIFICATIONS:

- Demonstrated knowledge of the International Criminal Court and international criminal law;
- Editorial/publication experience in an academic setting;
- Experience supervising and managing others.
- Strong writing, research, and interpersonal skills;
- Comfort working closely with virtual staff and board;
- Strong communications skills and availability to respond promptly to e-mail communications;
- Strong commitment to international human rights, criminal law, and/or social justice;
- Reliable, organized, team-oriented, and able to meet deadlines.
- Master's degree or equivalent in a related field; and
- Willingness to commit to publication of at least two volumes of the journal.

PREFERRED QUALIFICATIONS:

- Experience working directly with international criminal courts and/or tribunals;
- Contacts with academics and practitioners within the international criminal law field; and
- Experience with the Chicago Manual of Style and The Bluebook system of citation.

Address all questions to publications@americanstudents.us.

How to Apply:

Submit a letter of interest, a resume/CV, 1 writing sample of approximately 15,000 words, and 3 references to publications@americanstudents.us. In the subject line please include: Eyes EIC, [your last name]. Applications will be reviewed on a rolling basis—we are hoping to fill the position ASAP. Application deadline is Monday, September 16, 2013.
